Albert Edgar Angier

HE was a member of the R.O.T.C. from 1916 until his enlistment as a Private in the Officers' Training School at Camp Upton, New York, on January 5, 1918. In April he sailed for France as a Sergeant with the 77th Division, and in July he was commissioned Second Lieutenant with Company L, 308th Infantry. After service at the front during August and September, he received, on September 10, his First Lieutenancy "for extraordinary service and bravery in action." Four days later while in command of his Company — Company M of the 308th — in an attack upon a machine-gun nest at Revillon, he was mortally wounded and died the following day. He received the Distinguished Service Cross on January 10, 1919.

Augustus Aspinwall

HE enlisted on January 4, 1918, at the Officers' Training School, Camp Upton, New York. In his previous training he had attended the Plattsburg Camp in 1916, and from the fall of that year he had been a member of the R.O.T.C. He sailed overseas in April, 1918, as a Sergeant, and on July 13 he was commissioned Second Lieutenant in the 110th Infantry, 28th Division. On August 25 he was killed in action on the Vesle River.

Francis Reed Austin

HE enlisted as a Private, First Class, at the Officers' Training School, Camp Upton, New York, on January 5, 1918, following training in the R.O.T.C. On April 14 he sailed for France as a Corporal in Company D, 305th Infantry, 77th Division. He was commissioned Second Lieutenant and assigned to Company G, 109th Infantry, 28th Division, on July 22. From September 25 he led his men fourteen days in the Argonne Forest, acting as company commander then and until October 28, when he was commissioned First Lieutenant and was placed in command of a one-pound gun unit. On November 11 he died from wounds received the same day in action near Haumont. He was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross on December 23, 1918, for "extraordinary heroism."

William Halsall Cheney

HE enlisted in the Aviation Section of the Signal Corps on March 31, 1917. After training at Newport News and in the School of Military Aeronautics at Urbana, Illinois, where he graduated as an honor student in July, he was ordered overseas in August for advanced training. He was the first American to win the Italian Military Aviation Brevet, October 18, 1917. A month later he was promoted to First Lieutenant. In an aerial collision at Foggia, Italy, on January 20, 1918, he was killed. The Peterborough, New Hampshire, Post of the American Legion is named in his honor, the William H. Cheney Post No. 5.

Robert Fitzgerald Clark

HE received his first military training at Plattsburg in 1916, and the next academic year he was a member of the R.O.T.C. In April, 1917, he enlisted in the Naval Reserve Flying Corps. In June he was sent to Pensacola, Florida, where he was commissioned as Ensign, United States Naval Reserve Flying Corps, Class 5, on December 17, 1917. He sailed overseas in January, 1918, and for six months he was assigned to duty with the Royal Naval Air Service at various stations on the English coast. On July 18, 1918, he was attached to the United States Naval Air Station at Brest. It was while he was acting as chief pilot at this station that he was killed in a flight on August 21, 1918. He is buried at Kerfautras Cemetery near Brest.

James Renville Clements

HE joined the Naval Training Corps at Squantum, Massachusetts, at the outbreak of the war. From there he went to the Naval Aviation Station at Hampton Roads, Virginia, and at Miami and Pensacola, Florida. He was sent overseas in August, 1918; had there finished his training and was about to engage in active service, when on October 8 he died of pneumonia in the American Red Cross Hospital No. 1, at Paris. At the time of his death he was an Ensign in the United States Naval Reserve Force.

Thomas Milton Hodgens, Jr.

HE enlisted in the United States Naval Reserve Force, First Division, in March, 1917. After active service throughout the summer he returned to college in the fall for a course in navigation. In the fall of 1918 he received his commission as Ensign. For some weeks he commanded a patrol boat, and in early December he was assigned to the U.S.S. New Mexico. After his release from active service in December, he was stricken with pneumonia, and died on January 12, 1919, in New York.

Ralph Henry Lasser

HE enlisted on May 1, 1917, as a Private in Company E, First Massachusetts Engineers, which later became the 101st Engineers. The year before he had served on the Mexican border. He fell at Beaumont, France, on June 16, 1918, and is buried at Menil-la-Tour.

Alexander Farnum Lippitt

HE was commissioned First Lieutenant in the Infantry at the close of the Second Officers' Training Camp at Plattsburg on November 27, 1917. For some months preceding this camp he had been a member of the R.O.T.C. On January 15, 1918, he left for France, and in March he was assigned to Company I, 166th Infantry, 42d (Rainbow) Division. He was recommended for the Croix de Guerre in July. During the fighting at Fère-en-Tardenois on August 1 he was mortally wounded. He died at Military Hospital No. 11, Cape May, New Jersey, on October 6, 1918.

William MacMillan Maslen

HE was Acting Sergeant in Company F of the Harvard Unit, Students' Army Training Corps. On November 25, 1918, he died at the Stillman Infirmary of pneumonia following influenza.

David Endicott Putnam

HE entered the French Army in April, 1917, and attained the grade of Sergeant in the Lafayette Escadrille before transferring to the American Army. On June 10, 1918, he became a First Lieutenant in the 139th Aero Squadron of which he was flight commander. He was killed on September 12, 1918, while patrolling near Limey north of St. Mihiel. Officially he is credited with fourteen and unofficially with twenty enemy planes. He received from the French Government the Croix de Guerre, with palms and stars, and the Médaille Militaire. He was also made a member of the Legion of Honor. The American Aero Club and the citizens of Newton presented him with Medals of Honor. He was awarded the American Distinguished Service Cross posthumously. A French naval vessel will be named for him.

Donald Gilman Trow

HE attended the training camp at Fort Terry on Plum Island in 1916. In 1918 he was a member of the R.O.T.C. He was commissioned Second Lieutenant of Infantry at Plattsburg in September, 1918, and served with the Students' Army Training Corps at the University of Pittsburgh. On October 23, 1918, he died from pneumonia at the McGee Hospital, Pittsburgh.

Holyoke Lewis Whitney

HE received training at Plattsburg in the summers of 1916 and 1917, and in the R.O.T.C. On January 5, 1918, he entered the Officers' Training School at Camp Upton, New York. Before completing the course he was sent overseas, was made a Sergeant in Company E, 305th Infantry, and on July 13 was commissioned Second Lieutenant in Company K, 109th Infantry, 28th Division. He was wounded in the foot by shrapnel in early October, and had returned to his company shortly before the armistice. He was accidentally killed at Woinville, France, on November 25, and was buried with full military honors in a cemetery at Buxerulles, France. He was recommended for First Lieutenant some time before his death.

David Little Withington, Jr.

HE was a member of the R.O.T.C. in the summer of 1917 and during the following academic year. In the fall of 1918 he was with the Students' Army Training Corps, and in October he received his appointment to the Infantry Officers' Training School at Camp Lee, Virginia. Before he was called he was stricken with influenza, from which he died October 5, 1918, at Plymouth, Massachusetts.

John Boyd Wolverton

HE enlisted in the United States Naval Reserve Force as a seaman June 1, 1918, and served at several naval stations in New England before his entrance into the Officers' Material School in Cambridge. On September 22, 1918, he died at the Naval Hospital in Chelsea, as a result of influenza.

Table of Contents

Preface

HE Harvard Nineteen Twenty Class Album traces its history to the Harvard Portfolio of 1890, a thirty-eight-page booklet "published by the students of Harvard University." In the next sixteen years several changes were made in the character of the annual book, until in 1906 the Album appeared as the official publication of the graduating class. A Class Book was published in 1901, and two years later a Year Book, which soon amalgamated with the (Class) Album, so named in 1898, under the supervision of the Senior Photograph Committee. The Class of 1911 adopted the present size and shape of the book and in many ways enlarged the scope of its contents. In later years the Committees have endeavored to improve upon the previous year's Album wherever possible. Over a thousand pictures, including the individual photographs, are included in the Album. Through the "lives" in the latter section the reader has a ready reference to the undergraduate careers and to the war records of the members of 1920.

An abnormally large percentage of the class were not in residence the past year at the University, which added to the labors of the Committee. The difficulties in this connection, however, have not been comparable to those of 1918 and 1919. For the first time the Album contains the picture of every individual who has been a member of the graduating class.

The Committee takes this opportunity to express its appreciation for invaluable services on the part of Miss Curry, of the Notman Studio; Mr. W. C. Lane, Librarian; Terry, of the Office; D. C. Seager, '20, and the roommates of the Committee. The football pictures on page 113 are from the files of the Crimson.

FRENCH ARMY OFFICERS AT HARVARD

Captain A. Dupont — Lieutenant Jean Giraudoux — Captain de Jarney — Lieutenant A. Morize
Major J. de Reviers de Mauny — Major P. J. L. Azan

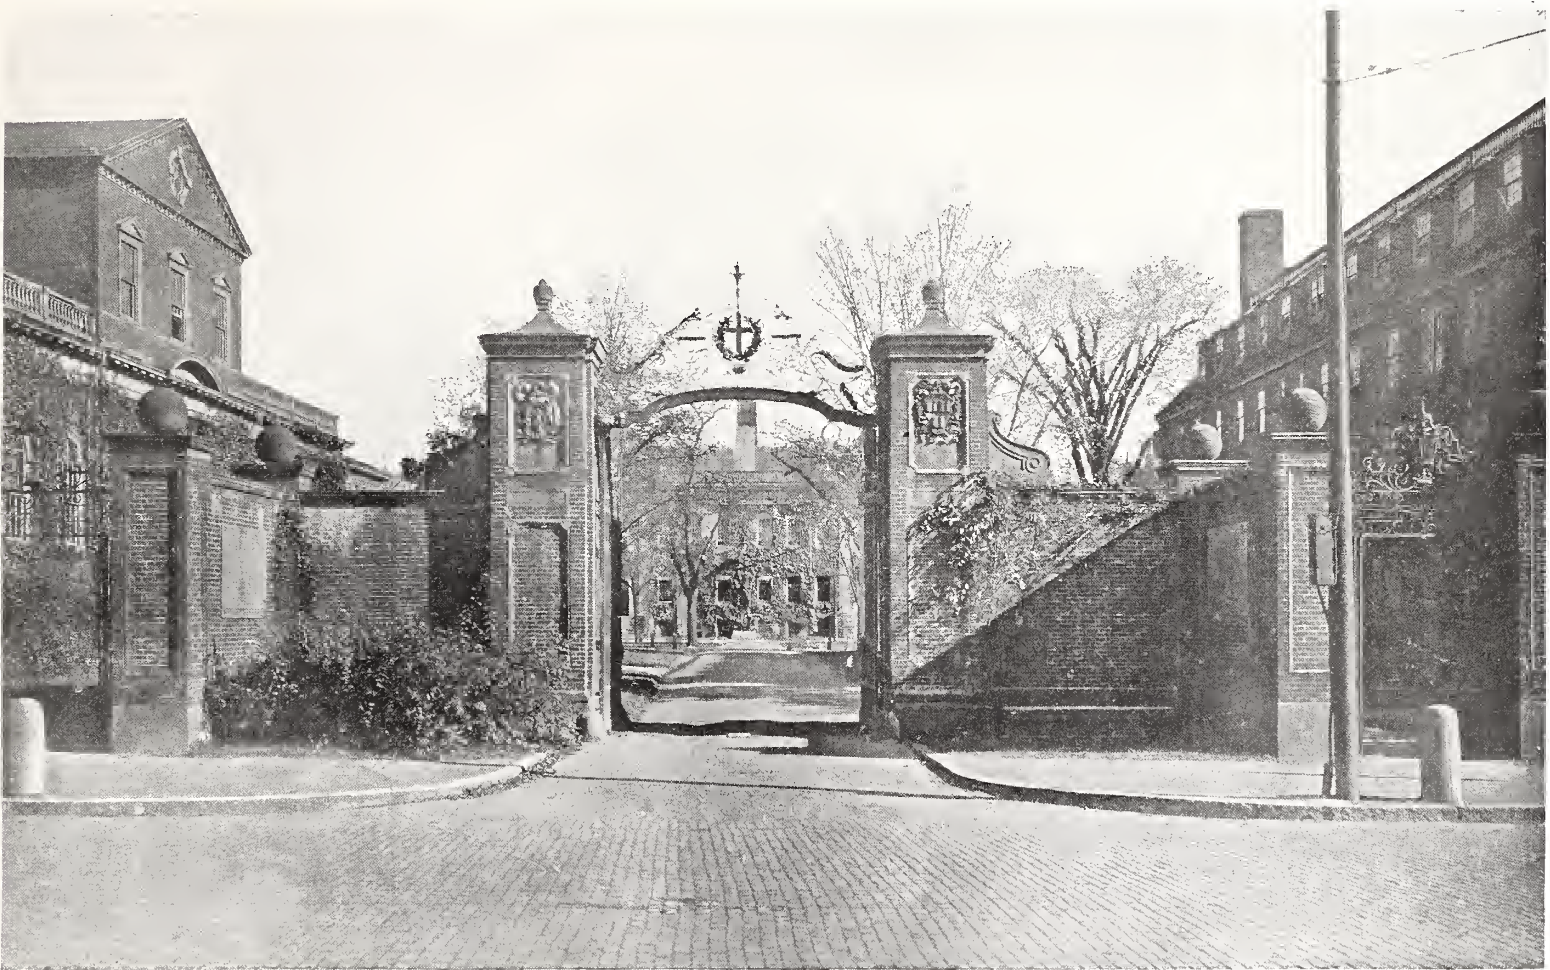

When we are older, we shall turn
And see this college to be like a light,
Full-beamed and radiantly bright,
Which gives of its brilliance to us all, and yet appears
With undiminished brightness still to burn.

And we shall know at last,
When older we have come to see
How things renew themselves eternally,
That Harvard shines so undiminished bright
Because each class has helped unite
Her future with her past.

ASEBALL as an activity of the Class of 1920 commenced in the early spring of 1917, when over fifty men reported for batting and fielding practice in the Cage under the tutelage of Coach Ball. The raw material was quickly weeded out when the weather permitted work on the diamond. The development of the team was retarded by the frequent departures of the most promising players for military or naval service. Before any games of the schedule could be played came the declaration of war and the consequent abandonment of intercollegiate contests. Regular practice ceased at once in common with that of the University squad, which was progressing rapidly under Captain Abbott, '17, and Coach Hugh Duffy.

During the fall of 1917 the men who still remained in college formed an informal team, which won four games against service nines in the vicinity, — a record which gave promise of success in the spring. The 1918 baseball team, however, won only a single game of the nine scheduled, defeating Princeton 8 to 7 in the first game of the triangular series. Yale won twice from the University. Injuries that impaired the team's strength, the difficulty encountered in obtaining sufficient time for practice because of military requirements, the lack of a single player of University experience, and the large number of crack service teams opposed, accounted in large measure for the mediocre showing. The most effective batters, on a team whose averages in both batting and fielding were unusually low, were J. B. Wolverton, '20, L. B. Evans, '20, T. H. Gammack, '20, and R. P. Hallowell, '20. The Class of 1920 furnished several winners of the war-time "H" with L. B. Evans, T. H. Gammack, R. P. Hallowell, J. L. Mosle, J. G. Coolidge, 2d, P. C. Newton, and E. A. McCouch, as its representatives.

The 1919 season opened with a victory over Bowdoin; but the team proved to be very unsteady as a unit, and the pitchers were at most times erratic. Occasionally, with good pitching by W. B. Felton, '19, F. K. Bullard, '20, or E. S. Hardell, '21, and steady backing by the whole team, victories were achieved, notably an 8 to 0 defeat of Princeton in the third and deciding game of the series, and a shut-out of Boston College, that seemed to augur better things for the Yale series than a very in-and-out season would have presaged. Unsteadiness in the pitching department, coupled with ineffective hitting, proved the undoing of the team in the first game of the series, Yale winning 2 to 1. In the second game, Harvard was defeated 8 to 10, giving evidence of the lack of close teamwork that could alone account for such unsteady, erratic playing. The members of 1920 who were awarded the "H" were R. W. Emmons, 3d, K. W. Perkins, F. K. Bullard, and R. P. Hallowell. To Emmons, captain-elect for 1920, was awarded at the close of the season the Wingate Cup for the best all-around player of the season. K. W. Perkins received the Barrett Wendell Bat for leading the team in hitting.

The 1920 team has to date suffered from the unusual weather conditions which have prevented proper outdoor work. Under the direction of Coach Slattery the team won its opening game, the only one that could be played before the Southern trip. Due to lack of practice the nine proved to be under-developed as compared with the well-advanced Southern college teams. Tie games were played with Virginia and West Point, and close games were lost to Pennsylvania, the Naval Academy, and Columbia. The team signalized its return by defeating Cornell in twelve innings by the score of 7 to 6.

The hitting in this latest game, together with the excellent fielding of the entire team, show that the possibilities for a winning team are great.

Crew

THE Class of 1920 had an unfortunate start in crew because of the war. In the fall of 1916 the usual dormitory crews were made up, and races were rowed by the first, second, and third dormitory crews. Standish, Gore, and Smith was the order of the crews at the finish of all the races. After these races two crews were picked, which rowed as long as the weather permitted. In the winter there was voluntary rowing in the tank and on the machines. Immediately after midyears a squad of seventy reported for indoor work. The crews were on the river late in March and rowed until April 5, after which all rowing was stopped upon the declaration of war. The first two 1920 crews were boated in this order when rowing stopped: First crew: cox, Steedman; stroke, Mellen; 7, Burden; 6, Livingston; 5, Norrie; 4, Whitney; 3, Withington; 2, Brown; bow, Bowen. Second crew: cox, Reynders; stroke, Kunhardt; 7, Apthorp; 6, Noyes; 5, W. Caswell; 4, Hagerman; 3, Bullard; 2, Perrin; bow, Lippitt. Three of these men, Lippitt, Whitney, and Withington, have since given their lives for their country.

In our Sophomore year, "the war year," athletics were placed upon an informal basis. Fall rowing was conducted by Acting Captain Parkman, '19. Late in the winter athletics were raised to a "recognized" standing. After midyears practice was held on the machines in the Locker Building, the boathouses being closed to save coal. The crews were on the water in March, and on April 5, R. S. Emmet, '19, was elected captain. A. F. Tribble, '19, had been appointed manager. Mr. Haines was coaching the University crew and Mr. Brown had charge of the second crew.

The University and Freshman crews went to Princeton for races on Lake Carnegie, April 28. To save money no shells were taken, the crews rowing in a borrowed Princeton boat which was re-rigged from starboard to port stroke. The Freshmen beat Princeton, '21, by two lengths. In the University race we took the lead at the start, and won by over a length. The crew rowed in this order: cox, Reynders, '20; stroke, Emmet, '19 (captain); 7, Whitney, '19; 6, Withington, '20; 5, Parkman, '19; 4, Batchelder, '20; 3, Linder, '19; 2, Coleman, '19; bow, Bowen, '20. Through an agreement with Yale, rowing was limited to three afternoons a week as crews, in order not to interfere with the R.O.T.C. drill. Pair-oar work and tubbing was allowed on the odd days, after drill. On May 25 the Yale second and Freshman crews raced our crews, in borrowed boats, over the mile-and-seven-eighths course in the Basin. Our Freshmen won easily, but the second crew lost to the Elis in a very close race. The second crew rowed as follows: cox, Gerould, '20; stroke, Whittemore, '19; 7, Fuller, '19; 6, Terry, '20; 5, Angell, '18 (captain); 4, Williamson, '20; 3, Hood, '20; 2, Lee, '19; bow, Wheeler, '20.

The University went to New Haven May 30 to practice on the new course on the Housatonic River, above Derby, and stayed in New Haven as guests of the Yale crew. The race at Derby was rowed with perfect water conditions, but on a very hot and muggy day. Yale took the lead at the start, and held its margin around the inside of the first bend. By a series of spurts our crew came up and passed the Blue, winning by over two lengths. This race dedicated Yale's new course. The crew rowed in the same order as at Princeton.

The fall of 1918 saw the college abandoned to the S.A.T.C. After the reopening of college rowing was soon started again indoors. F. B. Whitman, '19, was appointed acting captain, and later was elected captain. A. Houghton, '21, and E. Long, '21, were appointed assistant manager and second assistant manager respectively. Besides Whitman, there were two others of the last year's crew back in college, and with the 1921 men and some older oarsmen who had returned to college, there was a good nucleus of experienced men. The first race was with the Naval Academy and Princeton at Annapolis. The Navy won overwhelmingly by ten lengths over our crew, which in turn had three lengths on Princeton. There was also a Freshman race, with the same results although with shorter margins. Both races were for two miles, and against a strong head wind. The crew rowed in the following order: cox, Peirson, '21; stroke, Leighton, '19; 7, Brazer, Occ.; 6, Lothrop, '21; 5, Sedgwick, '21; 4, Morris, '21; 3, Linder, '19; 2, Batchelder, '20; bow, Whitman, '19 (captain).

With the Navy race out of the way the work started for the Yale races. On June 6 the crews went to New London for a stay that was shorter than was usual before 1919. The races were rowed on Friday, June 20. The Freshmen raced in the morning, followed by the second crews, both races being up-river from the Submarine Base. We won both the races, which were very close throughout. The second crew rowed as follows: cox, Durfee, '19; stroke, Jenney, '21; 7, Pond, '21; 6, Batchelder, '19 (captain); 5, Sedgwick, '21; 4, Morris, '21; 3, Brazer, Occ.; 2, Chanler, '19; bow, Damon, '21.

The University race, long delayed by the referee, was finally rowed soon after eight o'clock. We gained a slight lead in the first half mile, which we held till the mile-and-one-half mark. While passing the Submarine Base Yale pulled ahead, and then increased her lead to about two lengths. At the three-mile post we were gaining, and in another half mile we had passed the Elis. Then we caught a crab, which was followed immediately by a Yale crab. Here Yale obtained a lead of a length and three-quarters, by which they won. The time was slow, but it established a record for the new course, which is fifty yards shorter because of the new railroad bridge. The fact that each crew caught a crab showed the lack of experience in four-mile racing, due to the war and its break in rowing. The crew was boated as follows: cox, Peirson, '21; stroke, Leighton, '19; 7, Whitman, '19 (captain); 6, Olmsted, '21; 5, Linder, '19; 4, Lothrop, '21; 3, Brewer, '19; 2, Batchelder, '20; bow, Davis, '21.

On May 8 our Junior class crew won the class championship in the spring regatta. It raced the championship Yale crew (also 1920) on New Haven Harbor May 24, winning by ten lengths over the Henley distance of one mile and five-sixteenths. The crew rowed in this order: cox, Louderback (captain); stroke, Saltonstall; 7, Wheeler; 6, Dickerson; 5, Sanderson; 4, Pavenstedt; 3, Williamson; 2, Palmer; bow, Hardy.

This year, 1919–20, rowing is back on a pre-war basis. Wendell Davis, '21, has been elected captain, Amory Houghton, '21, is manager, and E. E. Long, '21, assistant manager. J. W. Watson, '22, won the competition for second assistant manager. A great deal of winter work was done, and an unusually large number of big men responded to the call for candidates, with a very heavy University crew resulting. The first races of the 1920 season were with the Navy at Annapolis. They were rowed on Monday, April 26, under wretched conditions. The Navy won all three races (first, second, and Freshman) by three or four lengths each. Our crews were seated as follows: University: cox, Williams, '22; stroke, Olmsted, '21; 7, Damon, '21; 6, Terry, '22; 5, Sedgwick, '21; 4, McCagg, '22; 3, Burden, '20; 2, Lothrop, '21; bow, Davis, '21 (captain); Second: cox, Peirson, '21; stroke, Jenney, '21 (acting captain); 7, Pond, '21; 6, Morris, '21; 5, Borland, '21; 4, Duncan, '22; 3, Appleton, '22; 2, Batchelder, '20; bow, Atkinson, '21.

On the next Saturday Princeton, Pennsylvania, and the University rowed a triangular race over the mile-and-seven-eighths course in the Basin. Princeton won by one-third of a length over our crew, which was three lengths ahead of Pennsylvania. The times were fast. The crew rowed in the same order as at Annapolis. We won the second crew race from Princeton by one-third of a length. The seconds rowed with Kane, '22, at five, and Batchelder, Occ., at six; otherwise the order was the same as in the Navy race.

The outlook for the rest of the season is very promising. The University races Cornell May 22 on Lake Cayuga, and the Second crew goes to the American Henley at Philadelphia at the end of May. The Yale regatta is at New London, June 25.

The 1920 Senior crew seems to be going well, and has a very good chance of repeating its wins of last year in the class races, and against Yale. It has a number of its last year's members again in the boat.

Football

IN its first year the Class of 1920 was fortunate in seeing the last regular football season before the war. The Freshman season ended in the overwhelming defeat of Yale by the score of 21 to 6. In its preparatory games the team was successful, losing its first game against Andover by the close score of 10 to 7, and winning on successive Saturdays its games with Technology Freshmen, Lowell Textile, Exeter, and the University School of Cleveland. The team itself was one of the heaviest that had represented a Freshman class for several years. It was not until the Yale game, however, that it showed its full power and aggressiveness under the tutelage of Head Coach Rollins, '16, assisted by Curtis, '16, and O'Brien, '14. The most promising men on this team from the viewpoint of University material were Captain F. C. Church, Jr., whose speed and kicking ability won for him and his team much credit; A. Horween, a heavy-plunging back; and R. G. Hadley, W. G. Brocker, and T. S. Woods, three strong linemen.

Sophomore year came with University football at a disadvantage. There was no desire for a University team and but little nucleus on which to build an informal team. W. Rollins, '16, was selected as coach, and a team was placed upon the field. The games were chiefly with service teams and resulted in the following scores: Dean Academy, 27 to 0; Bumpkin Island Naval Reserves, 35 to 0; the Maine Heavy Artillery, 13 to 0; Depot Brigade of Camp Devens, 0 to 0; Portland Naval Reserves, 0 to 0; Newport Naval Reserves, 0 to 14. Although defeated in this final game, the team showed itself a powerful eleven against the sailors, led by Black, the 1916 Yale captain. There were two captains of this team: W. B. Snow, '18, who, with F. C. Church and R. G. Stone, left after the first game to enter the Ensign School, and A. Horween. The 1920 men who played on the team were T. S. Woods, H. L. Whitney, C. Thorndike, J. G. Coolidge, 2d, B. S. Blanchard, C. F. Weden, J. Stubbs, and R. H. Bowen. Others who contributed less noticeably but as effectively to the success of war-time football include J. S. Higgins, E. Cabot, E. A. McCouch, R. W. Peet, P. J. Philbin, D. P. Robinson, Jr., G. F. Wason, and R. P. Hallowell. In 1918 an S.A.T.C. eleven was organized, which played a successful season with service teams.

The only season in which the Class of 1920 took part as University material was started with the usual spring practice in 1919. This time, as before in our class history, Rollins took charge of the football candidates. The work consisted chiefly in learning the rudiments of the game, but ended with a few scrimmages. The outlook for the 1919 season was bright, and with the appointment in June of R. T. Fisher, '12, as head coach,— P. D. Haughton not being able to return,— football began to rise again as an important undergraduate activity.

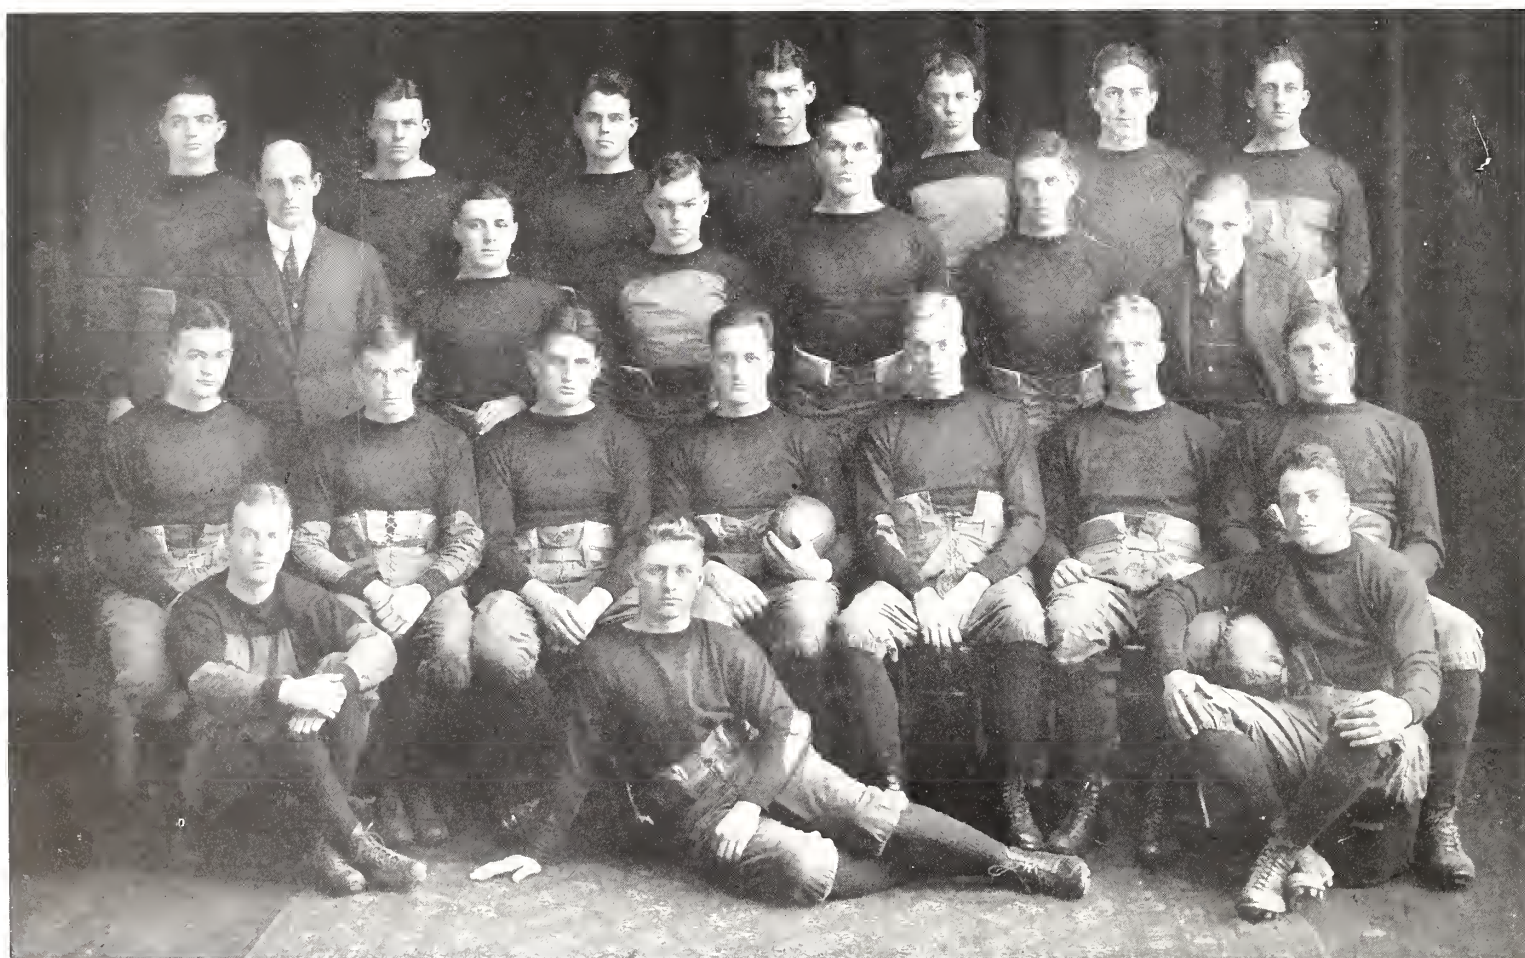

The first candidates, consisting chiefly of backs and ends, reported on September 2 to practice kicking, passing, and other fundamentals. On the eighth the whole squad was on hand to start the season's work, and after a week and a half of training scrimmage began in preparation for the Bates game. The work went on steadily until the Bates game on September 27. But one 1920 man started this game,— P. J. Philbin,— although R. G. Hadley, W. W. Caswell, T. S. Woods, C. Thorndike, F. S. Johnson, and F. C. Church, Jr., played before the game was over. The result of the game was a 53 to 0 victory. On October 4 the team had more difficulty with Boston College, winning 17 to 0. The day before W. J. Murray, '18, had been elected captain of the team. He had played on the 1916 team and had so far been regular quarterback of the 1919 team. In the next game Colby was defeated 35 to 0, and the following Saturday the University won from Brown 7 to 0 in a close and exciting game. This game marked the beginning of Woods' career as a regular guard, and A. Horween played in this game for the first time of the season. The fifth game came October 25 when the University of Virginia was easily defeated by the score of 47 to 0. The work of the following week was watched with considerable anxiety, for the lineup of the Princeton game seemed a forecast of the makeup of the team that would start the Yale game. On November 8 the team met Princeton at Princeton, with the lineup consisting of Steele and Desmond, ends; Sedgwick and Kane, tackles; Clark and Woods, guards; Havemeyer, center; Murray, quarterback; Casey, Burnham, and R. Horween, backs. At first Prince- was decidedly superior, but A. Horween was sent in early in the game as center and did much to slow the Princeton offensive. In the last five minutes, with the score 10 to 3 against us, the team, through a series of brilliant runs by Casey and several forward passes from Felton to Casey, tied the score, Casey making the touchdown and Church kicking the goal. Following this a team composed mainly of substitutes defeated Tufts 23 to 0. The next week came the Yale game. The team that started the game was the same as that of the Princeton game, except that Humphrey replaced Burnham. The Harvard team started the scoring with a goal from field by R. Horween. Then followed another series of passes from Felton to Casey, which brought the score to 10 to 0. The final score was 10 to 3, Braden having made a spectacular 55-yard drop kick for Yale. The Yale team was much heavier than ours, but the consensus of opinion was that she lost mainly on account of poor judgment. Captain Murray and Felton ran our team admirably, and all individuals played consistently hard football. The 1920 men who won their letters were A. Horween, P. S. Philbin, T. S. Woods, P. D. Steele, and F. C. Church, Jr., who was awarded the "H" after the Oregon game.

The season was barely a week over when an offer came from the Tournament of Roses to play a game in Pasadena, California, on the first of January. After some delays the invitation was accepted, and three weeks after the Yale game training started again for some twenty-three players. On the first day of the Christmas recess, the team started west with a body of coaches, reporters, and attachés. What happened on the trip is best told in Spargo's leaflet. The game itself was played with the University of Oregon and ended in a 7 to 6 victory for the Eastern eleven. A. Horween was the star, carrying the brunt of both offense and defense, while Church by spectacular dashes scored the touchdown, A. Horween kicking the goal. This goal won the game, for Oregon scored twice on field goals.

Later, in January, A. Horween was elected captain of the 1920 eleven. The long season then ended at a banquet in the Copley Plaza in February at which gold footballs were given the players. Thus football was revived in its old-time glory in 1919. With the exception of the 10 to 10 game with Princeton the games were all victories. The journey to the Pacific coast, the first ever undertaken by a Harvard eleven, did much to give the West a true idea of the University.

Hockey

OCKEY at the University has pursued the course of the other sports during the undergraduate existence of the Class of 1920. Fortunately the war made impossible only one season of this sport, however, whereas the other sports lost two years. Since the resumption of "formal" athletics on a pre-war basis in 1919, hockey has had great success, and to-day it has a very strong hold upon the attention of the University.

On December 8, 1916, eighty-one of our class reported to Coach Smart, '12, for the first hockey practice of the Freshman team. Within a few days D. Duncan, '18, replaced Coach Smart, who could not continue with the work. Milton, Melrose High, St. Mark's, Andover, and Exeter all were defeated by the seven which had lost its first game to Arlington High School. At Concord the team suffered its second defeat in the game with St. Paul's. Under the leadership of N. S. Walker, Jr., the team now practiced in the Arena for the Yale game on February 16. The Blue seven proved their superiority over our team 8 to 1. The following composed the team: g., W. J. Louderback, Jr.; p., J. Stubbs; c. p., F. C. Church, Jr.; l. w., R. W. Emmons, 3d; l. c., N. S. Walker, Jr., captain; r. c., E. Cabot; r. w., R. G. Payne. The substitutes were H. D. Bigelow, J. G. Coolidge, 2d, D. C. Hawkins, J. S. Higgins, E. C. Johnson, D. C. Seager, H. G. Trevor, and N. H. White.

The University team under the captaincy of J. E. P. Morgan, '17, did not measure up to expectation. Both Princeton and Yale series went to three games before a decision could be reached; in the former Harvard was the winner — 1 to 2, 4 to 3, 2 to 0; the latter series we lost — 0 to 2, 5 to 0, 0 to 2.

In Sophomore year hockey was played by an informal team, which met near-by school and service sevens. Wins were scored against the Newport Naval Reserves, the Radio School, and the Wanderers of Boston. The First Naval District Second Team was the only outfit to defeat the Informals. E. Cabot, J. Stubbs, N. S. Walker, Jr., and W. J. Louderback, Jr., from 1920, played regularly. Among the substitutes were A. Frenning, A. L. Peirson, D. C. Hawkins, H. F. Gibbs, D. P. Robinson, J. S. Higgins, and J. G. Coolidge, 2d. R. E. Gross, '19, captained the seven.

Hockey was started at once upon the opening of college in January, 1919. Formerly University teams had used the Boston Arena for practice, but the destruction of this building by fire now made it necessary to practice on the outdoor rinks. In the preliminary games against the Boston Hockey Club, Camp Devens, and Boston College, Harvard was successful in every case. The lineup of these games was: g., J. Holmes, '21; p., N. S. Walker, Jr., '20; c. p., H. K. White, '19; l. w., F. M. Bacon, '21; l. c., T. M. Avery, '21; r. c., E. L. Bigelow, '21; r. w., R. E. Gross, '19. Gross was elected captain of the team and acted as coach in the absence of Mr. Winsor, who could give little time to the team. On February 8 the University defeated Yale at the Brooklyn Ice Palace 4 to 1 through superior team play. Avery, Bacon, and Bigelow scored the goals. The only shift in the lineup of the earlier games was in the substitution of F. C. Church, Jr., '20, for White at cover-point. St. Paul's School the following week lost to the University 4 to 3, and in the final game of the season the University gained the triangular championship in defeating Princeton 7 to 2. From 1920 the following were among the thirteen "H" men: N. S. Walker, Jr., F. C. Church, Jr., E. Cabot, and E. W. Pavenstedt, manager. Walker was elected captain for the 1920 season.

The success of the 1920 hockey season was at the start uncertain in spite of the return of no less than eight "H" men. The lack of a suitable rink and the impossibility of securing Mr. Winsor as coach were felt to be serious handicaps in the development of a championship team. William Claflin, '15, former captain of the hockey team and a player of three years' experience under the "Winsor system," was secured as coach, and Mr. Winsor agreed to give as much time as possible to the team. Before Christmas practice on the outdoor rinks had weeded out of the seventy-five candidates a nucleus from which to build the team.

On January 1 the team returned for practice in the new Ice Pavilion, which was to be the scene of the season's home games. Because of the narrowness of the rink the six-man game was found to work best. The possibility of such a change had occasioned much worry, but the new style of play was attained by the players without great difficulty. The first three games were defeats at the hands of excellent teams. Toronto won 5 to 2, the Harvard Club, 3 to 1, and the Boston Athletic Association, 5 to 4.

The first game of the Yale series was now played in the Pavilion. At the end of the first period the Crimson led 3 to 1, at the end of the second Yale was ahead 4 to 3, and in the final score Harvard was a 5 to 4 victor. It was in this contest that the team first revealed its latent powers. Then followed a series of seven victories, including the first game of the Princeton series. The scores were: Dartmouth Club, 4 to 3; Dartmouth, 4 to 2; Tufts, 8 to 0; Princeton, 6 to 3; Technology, 8 to 0; All Stars, 4 to 3; Sherbrooke (Canada) Hockey Club, 6 to 4. Teamwork in the Dartmouth Club, All Stars, and Sherbrooke games, especially, showed its superiority over remarkable individual playing.

Yale was played for the second time at the Philadelphia Ice Palace, a surface almost twice the size of the Cambridge rink. Here it was felt the fast Blue skaters would have an excellent chance of defeating the University. The "Winsor system" prevailed, however, and Yale suffered a 3 to 0 defeat. Seven-man hockey was played in this game. Princeton was defeated in the final game of the season 10 to 1. Thus from a doubtful start the team became a strong organization. In addition to defeating several amateur teams, including the Boston All Stars, the seven succeeded in carrying away undisputedly the Eastern intercollegiate championship.

J. Stubbs, '20, and E. L. Bigelow, '21, were the individual stars of the season. In the former the University possessed a defense player surpassed by few in the game, and in the latter a brilliant forward. The subordination of the individual to the perfection of teamwork is a cardinal principle of the Winsor system, and in this the University had its strength. To Coaches Winsor and Claflin the success of the team is due. Three men from 1920 received their "H" for playing in the Yale series: N. S. Walker, Jr., R. W. Emmons, 3d, and J. Stubbs. L. T. Lanman was manager.

Track Athletics

IN the fall of 1916 the Freshman Cross-Country team inaugurated the history of 1920's participation in track. Providence High School and Andover were defeated by large margins, but in the final race the Yale Freshmen scored a victory. Captain B. Lewis, D. H. Worrall, and D. J. Duggan were first, fourth, and seventh in this race. Worcester Academy was defeated 40 to 32 in a midwinter meet. The Winter Carnival brought forth three winners from 1920—N. H. White, Jr., F. F. Williams, and H. D. Bigelow. The Relay team, under the leadership of B. S. Blanchard, Jr., lost to the Blue yearlings by five yards. When the spring season opened the Freshmen gave promise of an excellent team. R. W. Harwood in the pole vault, J. Buffington in the high jump, A. Horween, C. F. Batchelder, Jr., and R. G. Hadley in the shot-put, and L. K. Marshall and Hadley in the hammer throw, were the leading field event candidates. On the track were Blanchard and Williams in the dashes; H. B. Davis, P. E. Stevenson, F. W. Willett, W. H. Goodwin, W. L. Nolan, in the middle distances; and D. J. Duggan and Lewis in the distance runs. With the declaration of war practice ceased and the schedule was abandoned.

An informal cross-country team was organized in the fall of Sophomore year, and in the winter a relay race, which we lost, was held with Technology. In the spring the sport was reorganized on a more formal basis, meets being scheduled with Technology and with Yale and Princeton. On the departure of Captain Lewis, H. D. Costigan succeeded to the captaincy. Technology won 67 to 50 in the early season meet. In the triangular meet with Yale and Princeton, held in place of the usual dual meets, Princeton was first, with 49⅓ points, Yale second with 41⅓, and Harvard third with 13. Stevenson placed in the quarter-mile, and Duggan and Costigan were second and third in the half-mile. These three also ran in the Intercollegiates.

With the opening of college in January, 1919, Track was at once resumed on a formal basis. In relay events the Boston Athletic Association and Yale were defeated. Our team was barely beaten by Chicago in the two-mile relay at Philadelphia. Duggan and Goodwin ran in all three races, while Costigan was in the first-named.

The Technology meet, which was a 73 to 44 victory, on May 5 was the opening contest of the outdoor season. Harwood was first in the pole vault, Duggan second in the half-mile, and F. C. Church, Jr., second in the high hurdles.

Two weeks later, in New Haven, Yale administered another defeat to the Crimson, 64¼ to 52¾. Harwood tied for first in the pole vault and Lewis was third in the two-mile. Against Princeton in the Stadium, on the 24th, the team was more successful, conquering the Tiger 65½ to 51½. Harwood again proved his ability with a first in the pole vault. Duggan was second in the half-mile, B. H. Tracy third in the low hurdles, F. D. Johnson in a tie for third in the pole vault, and Lewis third in the two-mile. The Intercollegiates, in the Stadium, ended the season. Harwood, in a tie for third place in the pole vault, was the only 1920 man to place. W. Moore, '19, captained the team.

The start of the last chapter in the history of 1920 Track was none too auspicious, for the Cross-Country team failed to win any of its races. Dual races were lost to Cornell and Yale; the team also ran in the Syracuse invitation meet and the Intercollegiates. T. G. Ames, Goodwin, Captain Lewis, G. F. Wason, and Worrall were the men from our class among the harriers. In the winter relay season Yale defeated Harvard twice. We also lost to Technology, while at Albany against Cornell we were victorious. Goodwin ran in these races. An indoor meet with Cornell and Dartmouth ended as follows: Dartmouth, 37; Harvard, 31; Cornell, 12. A 44 to 19 victory was also scored over Technology in a dual meet.

Under the oversight of Coaches Donovan and Farrell and Dr. Whalen the team is now preparing for the spring meets. The management has revived the handicap meets, class meets, and the Dodge and Wells Cup meets to increase the interest and enthusiasm in the sport. The chances for a successful season are very good.

Minor Sports

Second Football Team

HE Second Football Team experienced the most successful season ever seen at Harvard for a black-jerseyed aggregation, with four victories and no defeats. But games are of entirely secondary importance for the second team. Its object is to prepare the first team for its games — for its victories.

Toward the end of the season in past years there was often difficulty in getting eleven men together to scrimmage the regulars. This year there were over sixty men reporting daily. Separate teams representing Yale, Princeton, Tufts, Brown, etc., could always be had. This spirit was due to the magnetism of Coach Knox. His thorough knowledge of the game, his interest, and his fellowship acted as an incentive to the men. Early in the season T. H. Wales, '21, was elected captain, and proved to be such a good leader that he was advanced to the first squad.

JOHN DONALD FALVEY,
Manager.

Association Football

Freshman year found an Association Football squad of only twelve men. In spite of this lack of interest, however, a team was developed, which won two of the four games played. An informal team the next season, coached by F. Diamond, '17, kept up interest in the sport, and in 1918 a squad practiced voluntarily, playing no games with outside teams.

Association Football was reorganized last fall and has now become one of the strongest minor sports. Three teams under Coach Burgess practiced daily throughout the season. Andover and Springfield Y.M.C.A. College were defeated in the early games. In the Intercollegiate League Harvard finished fourth with the following scores: Harvard, 2 — Cornell, 2; Harvard, 0 — Princeton, 5; Harvard, 1 — Pennsylvania, 3 (the League champions); Harvard, 0 — Yale, 0 (two extra periods); Harvard, 1 — Haverford, 0. Through graduation the team will lose M. Heard, P. K. Fisher, J. Glaser, V. B. Kellett, G. Tilton, and S. Washburn. Of the players from our class Fisher and Washburn stand out as the leading men. Next year the prospects are very good for a successful season notwithstanding the heavy loss by graduation. C. E. Masters, '21, has been elected captain of next year's team.

GARDNER TILTON,
Captain.

Wrestling

The 1920 team in its Freshman year was brought together as a preparation for teams in future years, rather than as a definite Freshman sport. Practice was voluntary, and about twenty candidates reported for the team. T. M. Brown was chosen captain, while the other members of the team were L. B. Davis, A. Green, J. F. Hardaway, J. Israelite, A. K. Marsh, and A. H. Walsh. In the only meet of the season 1920 overwhelmingly defeated Technology Freshmen 23 to 2. A. Green won the University title in the 125-pound class in the championship tournament held that year.

The following season, Sophomore year, there was no University team because of the war, but the University wrestling carnival was held as usual. In this tournament J. Israelite won the title in the 125-pound class. Junior year, in 1918–1919, Geoffrey Baker was the only 1920 man on the University team. The team defeated Tufts, Brown, and Technology that season, and lost to Yale. In the college championships Baker obtained the medal in the 125-pound class.

In the last season, 1919–1920, no 1920 man was on the regular team until the last match of the year, when J. Israelite, wrestling in the 145-pound class in the New England Intercollegiate meet at Springfield, captured the New England title in his class. J. A. MacDonell, '21, was captain last season, and the team again won all its matches except the meet with Yale.

LEMUEL ADELBERT WATKINS,
Manager.

Swimming

Swimming at Harvard has always been seriously handicapped by the lack of a pool. Forced to use the Boston Y.M.C.A. tank for practice, the team faces great difficulties which only a modern swimming pool can overcome. The 1920 Freshman team lost four out of its five matches. The following men composed the team: R. G. Hadley (Captain), C. H. Watson (Manager), R. Ashton, R. G. Stone, P. K. Thomas, G. Tilton, G. S. Worcester, and L. J. Workum. Worcester, a star in the sprints, was the highest individual point winner, and Hadley won first place in the plunge in every meet.

On account of the war there was no team Sophomore year, but in 1919 an effort was made to revive the sport. A team of the following men was organized: G. Tilton (Captain), H. S. Villard (Manager), A. H. Andrews, R. Ashton, M. D. Kahn, A. Levy, F. S. Stranahan, P. Tishman, and L. J. Workum. This team lost each of its three matches, — with Springfield Y.M.C.A., Amherst, and Brown.

In 1920, in spite of again having to use the Boston Y.M.C.A., a squad of nearly sixty candidates practiced under Coach Sutherland three times a week. G. Tilton again captained the team, the other members being A. H. Brackett, L. B. Davis, W. W. Douglass, N. R. Knox, A. Levy, E. C. Mott-Smith, A. M. Stoddard, and G. S. Worcester. H. S. Villard and J. B. Fenno, Jr., were Manager and Assistant Manager, respectively. The team lost six of its nine meets, winning only from Springfield Y.M.C.A., Williams, and Boston University. For the first time a match was scheduled with Yale, which was lost 41 to 5. In the New England Intercollegiates Harvard secured third place, being but half a point behind Yale.

HENRY SERRANO VILLARD,
Manager.

Lacrosse

Lacrosse was not played in 1917 and 1918, during the war. But in 1919 the sport was reorganized and a schedule arranged. Experienced men were lacking and the only game won was that with Yale — by a score of 4 to 1. Good material, however, for 1920 was developed in both University and Freshman squads.

In the fall of 1919, practice was held under the direction of Coach M. H. Cochran, '15, and Captain L. Hall, '20. The squad was called out for spring practice under Coach Paul Gustafson, '12, on March 3. During March, practice was held nights in the baseball cage. By April 1 Soldiers' Field was in condition, and regular practice was held in preparation for the southern trip. On this trip Pennsylvania was beaten 3 to 2. Defeats were administered by the Crescent Athletic Club, Annapolis, Mt. Washington Country Club, and Johns Hopkins. The last game had to go into two extra sessions to break the tie. On Saturday, May 1, the team came from behind and beat the unusually strong Hobart aggregation in an extra period. This game showed the real strength of the twelve, and prepared the way for a strong attack against Cornell, Syracuse, and Yale. The squad has increased daily and the interest in the sport is growing rapidly. Future successes seem assured from the present interest and ability.

ROBERT MACKENZIE DUNNING,
Manager.

Tennis

Tennis in the University has always held a leading position among the minor sports. The week before the Class of 1920 entered, Harvard won the Intercollegiate Tennis Tournament at Pittsburgh in both the singles and doubles. It was the presence of such players as R. N. Williams, 2d, G. C. Caner, '17, and R. Harte, '17, that made the sport of such interest to the University. On the list of National Singles Champions Harvard has eight of the fifteen there written.

The 1920 Freshman tennis team did not play an outside match, as all sports were curtailed because of the declaration of war. In the fall of 1916 trials were held and a class team chosen. G. W. Helm was appointed captain, and the other members of the team were E. C. Johnson, A. E. Kirk, C. G. LeForgee, P. G. Woodward, and C. W. Wooldredge. Two interclass matches were held — one with 1919, which 1920 won, 5 to 1, and the other with 1918, which was lost, 5 to 2.

On an informal team in Sophomore year A. E. Kirk and A. A. Claflin, Jr., represented the class. 1919 saw tennis revived, with F. W. Hatch, '19, captain. The season included ten matches of which seven were victories. Unfortunately two of the defeats were to Princeton, 4 to 5, and to Yale, 3 to 7. G. W. Helm and D. P. Robinson, Jr., played regularly. In April of this year the team led by G. W. Helm made the customary Southern trip, on which it had a record of four victories, one tie, and one defeat.

Fencing

Because of the long training necessary in fencing Harvard has not recently had a Freshman team, a Novice Cup being the goal for which the beginners work. In 1917 this cup was won by R. H. Snow, '20. E. R. Gay, '19, was the University champion.

There was no formal team in the Sophomore year, but in the Junior year fencing was resumed. The team, consisting of E. R. Gay, '19 (Captain), R. H. Snow, '20, S. H. Ordway, '21, and C. S. Howard, '20, lost to Yale in the dual meet, but took third place in the Intercollegiates, beating Yale there 8 to 1. G. P. Howard, '20, won the Novice Cup and R. H. Snow the University Championship. During the Senior year the team, made up of R. H. Snow (Captain), S. H. Ordway, and G. P. Howard, had a long and successful season. Yale, Bowdoin, Harvard Graduates Team, Pennsylvania, New York Military Academy, Technology (twice), and Dartmouth were beaten in dual meets, the team losing only to the Naval Academy and Columbia. In the Intercollegiates the foils team won second place, the final score being: Navy, 39; Harvard, 30; Yale, 28; Columbia, 20; Pennsylvania, 15; Technology, 3.

The sport has been steadily increasing in popularity under the able instruction of J. L. Danguy, former coach of the American Olympic Fencing Team.

ROYALL HENDERSON SNOW,
Captain, 1919–1920.

Golf

Golf was scarcely organized Freshman year, when the entrance of the United States into the war caused the abandonment of all sports. On April 2, 1917, a meeting of candidates had been held, at which Captain H. S. Lake outlined the Freshman season. From that time on practice for a few of the candidates was held at the Oakley Golf Club but no matches were played, and the war ended practice. In 1918 a golf team was organized at the University; under Captain G. A. Whittemore, '18, the team won matches from Dartmouth and Williams, but lost to Pennsylvania. In 1919, upon the resumption of formal athletics after the war, there was greatly increased interest in golf. More than twenty-five candidates reported for the University team, which was captained by R. H. Wales, '19, and managed by W. H. Potter, '19. Practice was held regularly, and a team of seven men was chosen to represent the University. The team lost to Yale and was second in the Intercollegiate Tournament. H. S. Lake was the only member of 1920 on the team; he was elected captain for the season of 1920. Prospects for this year are hopeful at present with four members of last year's team back in college. D. Jones, '22, has been appointed manager for this year, but the entire makeup of the team has not yet been decided.

HAROLD SYKES LAKE,
Captain.

Gymnastic Team

Throughout the past season the Gymnastic Team has been in the process of reorganization until now the sport is once more successfully established. Two years' experience is an almost essential qualification for this intricate sport, so that with no veterans as a nucleus it was necessary to build with 1921 in view rather than the present year. Accordingly an effort was made to increase recruits from the Freshman and Sophomore classes. Twenty men started work under Coach Seikel, of whom fourteen were retained the entire season. Nine of these were prevented from competing by the eligibility rules, and of the remaining five, three point winners were developed.

The schedule included three meets,—a victory over Dartmouth, a defeat by Technology and Princeton in a triangular competition, and a defeat at the hands of Yale in New Haven. Several exhibitions by the entire squad were given in the course of the winter. R. F. Wiley captained the team.

Next season's prospects are very encouraging in this sport. Only two are lost from the squad, and but one of the point winners will not return. A heavier schedule is now being arranged, and if sufficient interest is shown a Freshman team will be organized.

KENNETH CAMPBELL,
Manager.

1920 Basketball

Basketball was played at the University this past winter for the first time in several years. Sufficient interest was aroused in the classes to make a series between class teams possible. The Senior team played six games with the other classes, winning three and losing three, and in post-season games defeated the Tufts Seniors and a quintet representing the Beta Gamma Epsilon of Northeastern.

The players from 1920 were: l. f., J. H. Orr; captain, A. T. Hill; r. f., A. H. Kaiden, S. A. Montague; c., L. E. Thomas; r. g., L. B. Merchant, R. W. Shaw; l. g., L. P. Jones, D. H. Worrall. A University informal team was organized at the close of the class season, of which Orr was elected captain.

The outlook for Basketball in the University is excellent at the present time. It is very likely that the sport will soon take the place here which it has at Yale and other colleges.

LEONARD EWING THOMAS.

Boxing

In 1916 the first boxing tournament was held in the University. Since then each year, near the end of the winter term, the championship bouts have taken place between contestants chosen in preliminary rounds. Much interest in the sport has developed because of the tournament, and this year there has been talk of the formation of a regularly organized University team, following the example of other colleges. To date, however, the Athletic Committee has not acted favorably upon the suggestion.

The Class of 1920 had but one winner in the tournament at Brattle Hall on March 25 of this year, — P. D. Steele in the 175-pound class. The only other champion 1920 has had is C. W. Ozias, who won the 115-pound class in 1917. The University champions for this year are: 115-pound class, F. J. Fox, '22; 125-pound class, H. J. Freedman, '23; 135-pound class, J. O. Stubbs, '21; 145-pound class, A. Gagliolo, '23; 160-pound class, F. D. Weatherhead, '22; 175-pound class, P. D. Steele, '20; heavyweight class, R. M. Sedgwick, '21.

PAUL JACKSON,
Manager.

Rifle Team

After midyears, in 1917, twenty-five men reported for the Freshman Rifle Team and held practice for a month. At the end of the period W. J. Louderback, Jr., was elected captain and J. Caswell, Jr., manager, while the following squad was retained: S. Frothingham, R. C. Hardy, W. J. Hitchcock, T. G. Holcombe, C. H. Holladay, B. Morton, C. L. Müller, L. B. Norrie, H. L. Williams, and C. L. Wilson. Several matches were arranged, but before they were shot the team was broken up by enlistments and R.O.T.C. work. Sophomore year there was no team as the R.O.T.C. took care of all rifle work. Upon the return to a peace footing in 1919 a rifle team was again organized. Although most of the colleges had not yet organized teams, a short schedule was arranged, in which Harvard defeated the Freshman team and Tufts. The 1920 members of the team were W. P. Bell, L. Hall, C. H. Holladay, and C. L. Wilson. This year the team was organized in the fall, and a schedule of sixteen matches arranged, most of which have been victories. The only Senior on the team has been C. L. Wilson.

THEODORE GIBBS HOLCOMBE,
Manager.

Squash Racquets and Squash

Squash Racquets was played at the University as a regularly organized minor sport for the first time this year. Tournaments have been held frequently in which much interest developed. The University team, in an inter-club series with the members of the Massachusetts Squash Racquets Association, tied for sixth place with the Newton Centre representatives. M. Bradlee, '22, served as captain of the team.

In the middle of March the Squash Racquets players organized an informal Squash team. Yale defeated this organization very easily at the University courts. 1920 was not represented on the team.

PAUL JACKSON,
Manager.

Second Hockey Team

The Second Hockey Team played a schedule of six games with near-by preparatory schools, of which five were victories and one a tie. Andover and Newton High were among those to be defeated. The 1920 members of the team were N. H. White, Jr. (Captain), A. L. Peirson, H. F. Gibbs, J. S. Higgins, D. C. Seager, and R. G. Payne.

Freshman Year

ITTLE did we realize, as we were introduced into that period of our lives which was to be the final stage in our education, what vast opportunities and varied experiences lay in store for us. Of one fact, however, everyone was certain, we were all Freshmen. From all corners of the earth we had come together, — men of every talent and temperament, — some from home and high schools, others from academies and boarding schools, but for all the transition was unique. Immediately, and almost imperceptibly, the benefits afforded by the Freshman dormitory system began to manifest themselves to us. The class was together as a whole, and in this bond of unity our destinies lay. To be true, many through association and innate qualities were well fitted for the freedom of university life, yet the majority still needed some guidance and restraint. In this function the amalgamation of the class in the three Freshman Halls was the best influence which could be brought to bear. The first step to further this end was in the appointment of Dormitory Committees whose duty it was to have general supervision over their respective halls.

As all others before, the Class of 1920 began its year in work, play, and in activities, social, literary, and athletic. There were the usual receptions in the Union and Phillips Brooks House, — occasions for cordiality, admonition, and scrutiny. As time went on, however, and the national crisis became more and more acute, eyes and hearts turned toward the European conflict. As the late winter months came, and our country still held aloof from war, men began to leave, some for ambulance service in France, others to give themselves to the Allied cause.

With the declaration of war all class activities except the Red Book ceased, and many immediately enlisted in the army or navy, while still more joined the R.O.T.C. Not until 1918, however, did the class suffer its first casualty. Thus the year which had started with activities and life, as normal as the rumblings of the European War would allow, ended in a complete upset of the undergraduate world, and with the thoughts of the men far removed from those things which in war time seemed so meaningless and unimportant.

In the chronological consideration of class activities football demands our first attention. From beginning to end the season was in all respects highly successful. The material which came out for the team was excellent and the spirit of the men loyal. In Wingate Rollins, '16, and his two assistants the first squad had men who not only knew the game, but who could impart that knowledge to others and inspire a winning spirit in the players. The team went through the season with but one defeat, culminating its achievements by a 21 to 6 victory over Yale.

Unfortunately the hockey team was not so successful in its schedule. For a long time it was impossible to obtain a coach, but eventually D. Duncan, '17, offered his services. In Norman S. Walker, Jr., the team had an excellent captain and a reliable player. In the game with Yale, however, the Harvard team was hopelessly outclassed, being beaten 8 to 1.

The indoor relay team defeated Yale by five yards on February 3 at Mechanics Building, Boston.

On February 28 the election of class officers was held, resulting as follows: President: Frederic Cameron Church, Jr.; Vice-President: Norman Stewart Walker, Jr.; Secretary-Treasurer: Frederic Keil Bullard; Student Council: Augustus Aspinwall.

Not long after the elections the committees were formed to perform the various duties necessary. The chairmen of these committees with the elected officers formed an Executive Board to supervise the general policy of the class. These chairmen were: Finance Committee, F. K. Bullard, ex officio, and R. W. Harwood; Dinner Committee, A. Horween; Entertainment Committee, C. Mellen, Jr.; Red Book Board, R. G. Stone.

The Finance Committee, with its collection of over twenty-two hundred dollars, surpassed the previous record by several hundred dollars.

The publication of the Red Book was made extremely difficult by the departure for service of three heads of departments, including the Editor-in-Chief. W. P. Belknap, Jr., and D. C. Hawkins thereupon carried out the publishing of the book, which is of peculiar value to our class because of the war.

Due to the serious and conservative atmosphere prevalent everywhere the social activities of the class were limited to one smoker in the Union, which took place in March. After much debate it was decided to cancel the class dinner, and in like manner the Jubilee to be held in June was abandoned.

From the very beginning the unrest caused by the war was a great handicap to baseball and crew. Though the prospect of both sports was promising, due to an abundance of good material, neither had a fair opportunity to develop, for with the declaration of war all organized rowing was officially stopped, and a few days later the baseball schedule was cancelled, resulting in the cessation of all practice.

Since space does not permit more, suffice it to say that as in preceding years the minor sports and interdormitory competitions were held, thus affording the majority of men in the class an opportunity to partake in organized athletics.

The memorial gift of 1920 to the College was in the form of a scholarship given by the officers to the member of the succeeding class, who in school and for the first few months in college most fully represented Harvard ideals, and who from every standpoint as scholar, athlete, and man seemed most worthy. The recipient was John Archibald Sessions, '21.

A HARVARD TOUCHDOWN — YALE GAME

CASWELL DROP-KICKING — YALE GAME

The Student Council

INCE 1908, the date of its original organization, the Student Council has developed and grown in size and usefulness. Originally composed of twenty-one members, it has now a maximum of thirty-three members. The Council is widely representative of the undergraduate body, a portion of its members being directly elected while others serve by virtue of holding positions of responsibility in certain undergraduate activities. Much of the work of the Council is carried on by an Executive Committee of seven, first formed in 1910. The Council works with a view to carrying out its original purpose as set forth in the constitution in these words: "The purpose of this Council is to coöperate thoroughly with the Faculty in raising the general intellectual standard at Harvard as stated in the undergraduate petition to the Faculty dated April 29, 1908, to bring before the governing bodies of the University expression of undergraduate opinion on subjects pertaining to the University, and to coöperate with the Athletic Committee, in eradicating any evils in the conduct of athletics."

In 1918–1919 the Council's first meeting was not held until January, when the disbanding of the S.A.T.C. and the reopening of college made possible the resumption of undergraduate activities. Much constructive work was done by the Council in the next few months to facilitate the rapid recovery of formal sports and other activities. Undoubtedly the attitude of the Council, as expressing the opinion of the undergraduate world, influenced the Athletic Committee in its wise decision to place athletics at once on as nearly the scale of pre-war years as was possible. Seven men were also appointed by the Council to aid in the revivification of the Union, which has taken place with great success under the supervision of D. M. Little, Jr., '18. Revision of the Sophomore and Junior class constitutions with regard to the method of nomination of officers was submitted by the Council to the classes concerned and was passed by them.

During the past year the Council has met about every four weeks and has transacted a large amount of routine business. The question of making Tennis a major sport was fully discussed and rejected by the Council, though recommendations for better facilities and coaching were made to the Athletic Committee. In order to exercise a certain amount of control over collections and "drives" in the college, it was voted "that permission to conduct any drive should first be obtained from the President of the Council in coöperation with the Regent." An amendment to the class constitutions to the effect that sixty per cent of the active members of the class have to vote in order to make any class election valid was drawn up and submitted to the three lower classes. The Executive Committee, acting in concert with the Register Board, revised the constitution of the latter organization in order to bring it under more direct control of the Council. Close coöperation with the Faculty and the Athletic Committee was maintained throughout the year.

The following members of the Class of 1920 have served as members of the Student Council:

1916–1917 — F. C. Church; A. Aspinwall.

1917–1918 — A. Horween; F. K. Bullard; B. Lewis; E. A. Bacon; H. D. Costigan.

Phi Beta Kappa

HI BETA KAPPA, the oldest college fraternity in America, was founded at the William and Mary College in Virginia in the year 1776; and five years later an active chapter was instituted at Harvard. For a long time a heavy veil of secrecy shrouded the fraternity. Early in the nineteenth century, however, about the time of the anti-masonic wave which swept over the country, the Harvard Chapter, inspired by John Quincy Adams, Judge Storey, and others, led the way in abolishing all secrecy. When in 1881 the existing chapters organized on a firm basis in the United Chapters, Phi Beta Kappa was described by Edward Everett Hale as "A Fossil from the Tertiary." To-day, however, Phi Beta Kappa, consisting of eighty-nine chapters, in practically every state of the Union, stands as a vital force in American colleges. And its purpose remains to-day, what its founders almost a century and a half before intended it to be, the encouragement and reward of sound and genuine scholarship.

Despite the fact, however, that Phi Beta Kappa has long since shaken off all of the esoteric, the society never fails to draw upon itself an abundance of muttered comment and criticism, which at regular intervals frequents the currents of undergraduate opinion. There is no intention of secrecy. The Greek letters represent three words, which, translated, mean "Philosophy," that is, the love of wisdom. "Philosophy, the Guide of Life" — this is its motto! And to that end it elects to membership each year eight members from the Junior class, from a list of twelve men of the highest standing at the College Office; and from the Senior class twenty-two from a list of forty-four eligible men. Ten additional Seniors may later be elected, who have failed to qualify at the first election, but whose "eligibility for membership in Phi Beta Kappa is incontestible." This latitude of choice enables the society to "look beneath the face value of the college grades and thus appraise the real scholastic attainments of the several candidates." The bone of contention has always been the question of "outside activities." According to present standards, attainment in things intellectual, in literature, etc., are allowed to weigh in a man's favor; but obviously participation in athletics and other "activities" can carry no weight. The "H" bears to the football man his full reward, as it does to the track or baseball enthusiast. And to the scholar comes the golden key with all its traditions. For Phi Beta Kappa to reward athletic ability also were to forget its origin and fail utterly in its purpose, and thereby lose all reason for existence.

For its undergraduate members Phi Beta Kappa holds weekly dinners in the Tower Room of Memorial Hall at which members of the Faculty are invited to speak. These gatherings have often formed the center of lively discussions on educational and political problems. In addition the society has for some years battled with the Yale Chapter on the baseball diamond.

The society's most serious achievement, however, has been the founding and maintenance of the Scholarship Service Bureau, first started five years ago. During the war the bureau was discontinued, but this year it has been revived with success. The board of "working advisers" consists of about sixty men, for the most part members of Phi Beta Kappa, who are able and willing to help students in need of assistance. The bureau seeks especially to aid men to whom college work is strange and to direct these men in the development of proper methods of study. In some measure, through the activities of this bureau, the true meaning and purposes of Phi Beta Kappa are being brought to the minds of the undergraduates.

ROBERT EPHRAIM ECKSTEIN,
Secretary.

Music and Drama in the University

HE Freshman Musical Clubs of the Class of 1920 were no sooner organized, with R. H. Ware as leader and C. Mellen as manager, than their activity was stopped by our entrance into the war. The Jubilee also was cancelled. Interdormitory singing under the direction of Dr. A. T. Davison, however, was carried on with better success and was an important factor in bringing the members of the class together.

In the fall of 1919 the University Musical Clubs dissolved, the Glee Club and the Instrumental Clubs continuing as separate organizations, but uniting for a few concerts. The Glee Club raised the standard of its music, singing only works of recognized merit, and under the coaching and leadership of Dr. Davison has been very successful in this new policy. A series of concerts was given in Sanders Theatre, also a concert with Fritz Kreisler in Symphony Hall, and another with the Boston Symphony Orchestra. The spring trip during the April vacation included Philadelphia, Washington, Cincinnati, Detroit, Cleveland, and Vassar College.

The Instrumental Clubs, consisting of the Banjo and Mandolin Clubs, in addition to local concerts, gave two concerts in New York with the Musical Clubs of Columbia and Cornell. The Instrumental and Glee Clubs together gave joint concerts with Princeton and Yale on the evenings before the football games.

The Pierian Sodality Orchestra owed its revival in 1919 largely to the efforts of N. S. Winitsky, president, and C. W. Carter, Jr. For the first time the Pierian has introduced light opera music in place of their former exclusively classical program. In April, in conjunction with the Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society, an opera was presented.

The University Band is the outgrowth of the R.O.T.C. and the S.A.T.C. bands of the past two years. From our class the officers have been P. K. McElroy, president; C. W. Carter, Jr., vice-president; F. W. Hall, drum major; and F. L. Reynolds, director. The band played at the football and baseball games, gave several local concerts, including tea dances at the Union, and in April it made a trip to New York.

The Musical Club has as its object the promotion of musical knowledge and appreciation in the University, by the production of original compositions by the students and the performance and discussion of standard works. Professor Heilman was president, M. M. Smith, secretary, and A. W. Quimby, treasurer. The annual concert for charity was given in the Music Building for the Boston Music School Settlement and the South End Music School.

Turning to dramatic activities we find the Hasty Pudding Club producing the cancelled play of 1917, "Barnum Was Right," written by R. E. Sherwood, '18, with the score by S. P. Sears, '17. Performances were given in Cambridge, Boston, Philadelphia, and New York. Pi Eta presented "Al Fareedah," the book by R. Gerould, music by M. H. Dill, and lyrics by W. A. Duerr. Performances were given in Cambridge, West Newton, and Exeter.

The Dramatic Club gave, as its fall production, Ludvig Von Holberg's "Erasmus Montanus," and Lord Dunsany's "Fame and the Poet." The spring play was Benavente's "The Governor's Wife." From 1920 the officers have been: C. C. Ryan, president, and F. Hibbard, treasurer. The Cercle Français presented "Primerose," in which E. Scott and Y. H. Buhler took the leading rôles, for the benefit of the American Committee for Devastated France.

The 47 Workshop under Professor Baker gives undergraduates an opportunity to see their own plays produced under ideal conditions. In 1919 Oliver Morosco offered a prize of five hundred dollars for the prose dramatic work, by present or past members of English 47 or 47A in the University or Radcliffe, best suited for professional production. "Mama's Affair," a three-act comedy, by Rachel Barton Butler, won the prize, which will be offered again this year.

Phillips Brooks House Association

MANY members of the class saw the Phillips Brooks House for the first time at the Freshman reception in the fall of 1916. Interspersed with speeches of fatherly advice and exhortation were a few facts about the house itself and some words of welcome. Shortly after this a canvasser appeared in the Freshman dormitories and extracted from a depleted purse one's contribution. Although many of our class have come in intimate touch with the association through work in social service or on the various committees, others have done little more than contribute to its financial maintenance. For their benefit a few facts concerning the purpose of the house and the scope of its work are here set forth.

The keynote of its activities is service. An information bureau, maintained by undergraduates, is established before the opening of College in the fall, where men taking the September examinations and all new students may obtain advice and assistance. A new system, inaugurated this year, enables many late comers to find suitable rooms for the college year. After the Freshman reception, however, the most important work of the association is begun. Undergraduates are enrolled for all branches of social service. Some teach English and other subjects to immigrants and workingmen; others lead boys' clubs, coaching athletic teams and organizing activities. Still others do varied work for associated charities. Through the Text Book Loan Library many students are enabled to borrow books for the year upon payment of a nominal sum. In addition to the foregoing there are five undergraduate societies promoting social and philanthropic ends organized under the Phillips Brooks House Association. The Medical, Law, Dental, and Graduate Schools each have a society for similar purposes.

The Phillips Brooks House is of service to the University in many other ways. Faculty teas and a Class Day spread are given there, and on Thanksgiving and Christmas open house is held for all students remaining in Cambridge. As an innovation last summer the house was kept open during the session of the Summer School. Its constant use by a large number of students made this a successful precedent to be followed in the future. Mention should be made of the series of lectures arranged by the Graduate Societies at which leading lawyers, doctors, and distinguished men in public life speak. These meetings are open to the University and, together with meetings of the Cosmopolitan Club and other organizations, take place in the house. In providing opportunity for social service to many students and in meeting the demands made on Harvard from Boston and Cambridge institutions for volunteer workers, the Phillips Brooks House more than justifies its existence.

To many members of the class the names of Arthur Beane, '11, Harold M. Thurston, '16, and Walter I. Tibbetts, '17, are very familiar. To these three men great credit for the continued success of the association is due. The past four years have been a time of unrest in the University. New fields of usefulness have been found, and the Phillips Brooks House has grown and developed in the emergency.

Undergraduate Publications

HE activities of the Class of 1920 in undergraduate journalism have been of double service. In the trying period of the war, when all the papers were deprived of the majority of their editors, full service had to be given by a greatly reduced force. During the fall of 1918, when the S.A.T.C. had entirely eclipsed all else and had changed the University from an educational institution into a training camp, all journals tottered on the very edge of existence. The papers somehow hobbled along until the Christmas vacation, operating under regencies of graduates and a small handful of undergraduates. So our class has been instrumental not only in preserving life in the college papers during the war, but it has also taken an active part in the regeneration after the war, when most of the old traditions had died, leaving 1920 to build on new lines.

In this regeneration many new features have been added, so that the papers have been able to respond to the burst of literature which has followed the war. Where two years ago there was a marked paucity of literary endeavor, the past winter has developed unusual interest in journalism and writing, and the college as a whole has responded to the activities of its literary lights.

In the fall of 1918 the Lampoon went into the hands of a graduate receivership under which it was issued regularly until the undergraduates returned. E. A. Bacon, whose work on the paper the previous year had been of utmost value, was then reëlected president, and H. C. Ward, who had been treasurer, again took up his duties. During the two years in which he held that office he did much to build up the Lampoon's circulation, until now it claims the third largest sale of any paper of its kind in the country. E. Scott has lately succeeded Bacon as president. The editors from our class have included J. B. Wheelwright, R. C. Langdon, J. F. Lee, E. Lovering, Jr., W. W. Claflin, and C. C. Ryan.

The Lampoon achieved its greatest triumph in the publication of the famous "Transcript Number," which went into five editions, and which we are now told is worth three dollars a copy on the Square. This clever burlesque is attributed to the pen of H. H. F. Jayne, who, unfortunately for the paper, did not stay for his Senior year. But "Lampy" is nothing if not versatile; for this year he turned himself to a parody on the Cosmopolitan, making that already popular magazine even more popular in college circles.

The Crimson has continued to deposit itself with reasonable regularity at the door of the undergraduate and to inform him of the time of examinations, the weather as forecasted by the editor, and other news of interest and value. It has grappled with the problems of the day, collegiate and otherwise, A. E. Kirk and J. U. Nef attempting to show the light to a not-over-excited student body. The Crimson has pointed with pride to the fifty-six-page paper it printed on the day of the Yale football game as the largest issue of a college paper ever published. During the year in conjunction with other college dailies it has held straw ballots on the questions of the League of Nations and the Presidential Nomination.

The paper has made two changes during the past year. During the summer of 1919 it absorbed the Illustrated, and with certain of the Illustrated editors it has published twice each month a sepia pictorial supplement, containing pictures of various college activities. With this addition, the Crimson claims for itself the distinction of being the only college paper to issue an illustrated section. The absorption of the Illustrated has proved a success, for at best it was doubtful whether the student body could support so many publications issued by its own members. If the Crimson then can also fill the place of a pictorial magazine, the coalition will have been of great value to the college. The second improvement was made in increasing the size of the Crimson from a four- to a five-column sheet. In former days it was often termed "a glorified bulletin," but its present larger size will at least give it the appearance of being more than a notice board for the college office et al. From 1920 the officers have been F. Workum and W. J. Louderback, Jr., presidents; W. W. Rowe and R. W. Harwood, business managers; A. E. Kirk and J. U. Nef, editorial chairmen; and C. H. Holladay, photographic chairman. The following have been members of the board of editors: B. F. Wilson, T. H. Gammack, R. B. Williamson, H. D.

Costigan, R. Gerould, R. M. Sanders, R. C. Hardy, M. H. Dill, W. J. A. Vaugh, A. LeR. Caldwell, D. F. McClure, J. G. King, Jr., G. C. Noyes, R. Fiske, R. R. Eaton, H. B. Slingerland, J. A. Freiberg.

Our class has not been able to show its true literary ability by commanding the Advocate, which L. K. Garrison, '19, has directed the past year. After a difficult career, which lasted during the two years of the war, the Advocate now has been brought to a position it has not held for many years. To a certain extent it was goaded on to greater efforts by the appearance of the Harvard Magazine, but its rejuvenation is probably due more to the literary efflorescence following the war than to any outside pressure. For the past nine months the Advocate has produced excellent numbers containing equally good prose and poetry. It has added an innovation in the political supplement, which appears from time to time with the opinions of our budding political leaders on every problem of the day. The editors from our class include H. H. F. Jayne, I. J. Williams, J. G. King, Jr., E. A. Bacon, J. B. Wheelwright, A. B. Slingerland, and C. LaFarge.

Just before the demise of the Monthly, in the spring of 1917, W. H. Cary, Jr., won for himself a place on its board; but aside from him we had no opportunity to prevent that untimely death.

As was previously mentioned, the Illustrated ceased publication in the spring of 1919. In 1917–1918 it made a great effort to popularize itself, but the following year, on account of loss of editors, it had a difficult time. Among the editors of our class who were active on it were C. H. Holladay, J. A. Freiberg, R. R. Eaton, and G. H. Hood.

The Harvard Magazine appeared in the spring of 1919 to stir the college from its literary conservatism. The many and skillful parodies which emblazoned the Square served only to advertise it, making its first issues sell rapidly because of the curiosity aroused. The magazine availed itself of every opportunity to knock the existing literary powers, deriding now the Crimson and the Advocate, now the Lampoon, and threatening the first-named with the competition of a new daily. The present staff includes W. F. Davidson, president; A. Burroughs, vice-president; and F. J. Smith.

In addition to the above publications our class has also done its share on Registers, Red Books, Albums, and handbooks, all of them requiring no little effort.

The problem at present confronting the undergraduate journalist is whether, with the very high cost of printing, all these magazines and books are worth the time spent in putting them out and the money necessary to support them; whether, indeed, it is best for the college to publish its writings in magazines of its own. The Alumni Bulletin presented the problem in the following words: "The willingness of the college to rest content with a single literary magazine is not reassuring; unless it is true, as has been said, that the undergraduates prefer to read professional magazines exclusively and to submit their manuscripts where pay and broader circulation count, or, as Mr. Firuski of the Dunster House Bookshop believes, that Harvard undergraduates are more interested in politics, economics, and social questions than in literature."

That question is often asked both by those who run the undergraduate publications and by those who read them. The answer surely is that if the publications can meet their expenses, if the students are willing to buy the papers, they are doubly worth the time and money spent on them. No one will doubt that many of the contributions are of distinct merit, or deny that experience in undergraduate journalism is of the utmost value to those who have associated themselves with it. Let us hope that Harvard papers will maintain for themselves a high position in the eyes of the graduate and undergraduate world.

Undergraduate Military and Naval Activities

WHEN a class has had to wait because of war, until its Senior year to enjoy its first full year of normal college life, no adequate review of its career can be compiled without mention of the military and naval activities in which it has participated.

Our first introduction into the art of fighting came in the fall of Freshman year, when a few members of the class, who had had previous military training at Plattsburg or elsewhere, were enrolled in the new course known as "Military Science 1." Under the direction of Captain Constant Cordier, former commandant of the Harvard Regiment, two hundred and fifty undergraduates trained faithfully throughout the fall and early winter. Lectures, section meetings, and drills were prescribed for and carried out by the little Corps, while the greater part of the college looked from its windows and smiled at the maneuvers of these volunteers in civilian dress. Before midwinter Captain William Bowen arrived as assistant to Captain Cordier.

Lieut. Col. JAMES ANDREW SHANNON
Killed in action Oct. 7, 1918

As soon as the final break with Germany became imminent it was decided to form a unit of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps at the University. Using the men in Military Science 1 as a nucleus the Corps was rapidly recruited to a strength of eleven hundred men, and training was commenced. Companies were formed under the more experienced cadets, and drills were held at all hours of the day in Hemenway Gymnasium and in the Baseball Cage. As the Corps was arranged into a regimental unit for drill and field exercises, so were the men divided into sections and lecture groups for theoretical instruction in the I. D. R., F. S. R., and topography. Soon the government gave evidence of its interest in the project by detailing five noncommissioned officers from the Regular Army for duty here. These men, who stayed with the R. O. T. C. until the end of June, were Sergeants Bender, Boyd, Brown, Kennedy, and Lynch.

With the declaration of war all athletics were dropped, and military training became the only interest of the college. President Lowell had already requested the French Government to send officers to instruct in the R.O.T.C.; and now it was learned that a military mission had been formed in France for this purpose. A little later five officers were reported to be on the way here, and in the last week of April they arrived. The parade from the South Station to the Harvard Club in Boston, in honor of the French officers, was the first public appearance of the Corps and created an excellent impression, for the past weeks of enthusiastic work had brought the men to a state of proficiency in drill. The French Mission was composed of Major Paul Azan, Major de Riviers de Mauny, Captain Adolph Dupont, Lieutenant André Morize, and Lieutenant Jean Giraudoux. Meantime two other events had taken place. Captain James A. Shannon had been detailed as assistant to Captain Cordier, and special final examinations had been held in the last week of April for all men in the R. O. T. C., who intended to enter the service at once or to stay for the summer encampment of the Corps. Men were already enlisting in the service in increasing numbers and a large group left in May for the first Officers' Training Camps.

Captain Cordier soon left the University for new duties in Washington, and he was succeeded as commandant by Captain Shannon. About this time, also, Captain Overton, an artillery officer, was added to the instructing staff. Under the direction of Captain Shannon each battalion of the regiment was sent to the Naval Rifle Range at Wakefield for a week-end in June, that the men might qualify in shooting. The trip to the range was made by train and the journey home on foot, — the first match of any length for the men. After this phase was completed the Corps was united in the Freshman Dormitories for a month's training before leaving for Barre, where the encampment was held. While still in Cambridge the Corps was augmented by the enrollment of large numbers of men from other colleges, who were eager for training preparatory to entering the second series of Officers' Training Camps in the fall. Among the new recruits were about one hundred from Yale, of whom several became officers in the Corps in the course of the summer.

Early in August the Corps was disbanded and the men given certificates of recommendation according to ability shown in training. The work had proved a great success, although the War Department had not seen fit to commission men direct from the Corps. A total of eighteen hundred and twenty-five men had been trained and of this number over seven hundred had left for service, while others, still too young for commissions, planned to continue training. In August the War Department honored Harvard by sending the Iron Battalion, a group of five hundred and fifty newly commissioned Reserve Officers, here to receive special training under the officers of the French Mission and Captain Shannon. At the conclusion of this session Captain Shannon was called away to join the Rainbow Division, and the French officers were scattered among the National Army Cantonments. Of the original mission, Lieutenant Morize remained at Harvard and Major (later Colonel) Azan was enabled to return occasionally during the fall as a lecturer.

With the reopening of college in the fall of 1917 Major Flynn took charge of the R. O. T. C., with Lieutenant Morize as his assistant. The men enrolled were divided into Military Science 1 and 2 for lectures and section meetings, and formed once more into a regiment for drill and maneuvers. Men left college in a steady stream to enter the service, and large groups were sent to each of the Officers' Training Camps. In May, 1918, came the early final examinations for men entering the service and for those enrolled in the Plattsburg R. O. T. C. Camp. Several men also received instruction in bayonet and grenade work, at Camp Devens, to fit them to act as instructors in the summer camps in Cambridge and Lancaster. Approximately eight hundred, many from other colleges and schools, attended the 1918 camp, which received the support of the government in the assignment of many officers to the Corps and in allowing the use of the training facilities at Camp Devens, not far from Camp Thayer in Lancaster.

September, 1918, brought the institution of the Students' Army Training Corps units in the colleges of the country. The corps at Harvard was under Colonel C. A. Williams, and later under Major Heermance, while a unit of the Marine Corps was formed under Lieutenant M. W. Vedder, U. S. M. C., and a Junior S. A. T. C. was started with Captain F. W. Rogers in command. The majority of these men, among whom were many admitted to college for the express purpose of receiving military training, were barracked in the Freshman Dormitories. The armistice brought an end to the S. A. T. C. experiment in early December, and by December 21, 1918, all the military activities at the University had closed.

During these two years of war the Navy Department was not idle in Cambridge. In the fall of 1917 Lieutenant E. F. Greene, U. S. N., retired, was placed in charge of a group of naval reservists who were studying for ensigns' examinations. Courses were given in Seamanship, Ordnance, and Regulations. When, just before Christmas, Lieutenant Greene died, his place was taken by Ensign William Barnard, N. N. V., and he in turn was later superseded by Lieutenant Commander J. C. Nowell. The men were given instruction in artillery and rifle work at Wakefield during the spring, and in June, 1918, went on a cruise with Dr. Stetson of the Astronomical Department. This system of naval training was taken over by the government in September, when Rear Admiral J. A. Rodgers took charge of it and ran it on the plan of the S. A. T. C. until the armistice.

Although this brings the actual training record of the University for the period of the war to a close, a word should be said of two institutions which were closely allied with Harvard. The Radio School, which became the largest in the country, was founded in April, 1917, when it occupied Pierce Hall and the Cruft Laboratory. As time passed recruits came in great numbers from naval stations all over the United States, and the Navy Department gradually took over Memorial Hall, Walter Hastings Hall, Craigie, Hemenway Gymnasium, Russell Hall, and Perkins for use as barracks. Finally the Cambridge Common was given over to the Navy and barracks constructed, which centralized the school, although the University buildings were still occupied. The First District Cadet School, later known as the Officers' Material School, also made use of college property. Starting in Holyoke House in 1917 it extended into Wadsworth House and Matthews Hall before the final class was graduated in the spring of 1919. Many undergraduates rose to commissioned ranks in the Navy through this school.

Courses in Military Science and Tactics have been reëstablished at the University, since the war, under the command of Captain R. C. F. Goetz, but the work is now in the artillery branch and not in the infantry. According to the plan now being carried out, the men who complete four years' training satisfactorily will become Reserve Officers. Another outcome of the war has been the establishment of the James A. Shannon Post of the American Legion at the University. This post, which immediately drew a large membership, is designed to keep former service men at Harvard in touch with the Legion while students. It was founded in memory of Captain James Andrew Shannon, who obtained such great results and won so completely the respect and love of the men in the R. O. T. C. during the summer of 1917.

In all of these activities, whether in the R. O. T. C., S. A. T. C., Army, Navy, or other services, the Class of 1920 did its share. It is fitting that this review should close with a few figures which show accurately, if somewhat coldly, the record of our class in the World War.

Sophomore Year

T was a source of surprise to each Sophomore returning in the fall of 1917 to find so many of his classmates again at their books. In the course of the summer each had reached the conclusion that he would probably be the only 1920 man in college. But the failure of the government to utilize immediately the members of the R.O.T.C., and the release of many Naval Reservists, sent many back to Cambridge who otherwise would have been engaged in military or naval work. College opened with about sixty per cent of its normal quota, and in our class there were four hundred and thirty-eight enrolled, a drop of about two hundred and seventy-five from the previous year.

At the outset there was a very noticeable spirit of unrest. Few men paid sufficient attention to their studies, and at the same time no concerted effort to organize athletics was apparent. Two reasons prevailed to prevent the organization of regular University teams. In the first place the expense and effort necessary to produce a football team, for example, in the manner of the previous season would not have been in accord with principles of war-time economy. Harvard did not care, as did many colleges, to run its sports on a reduced scale, and it was decided, wisely in our case, to drop all pretense of regular athletics. Also it was felt to be unfair to the many athletes absent from college, because of service, to place the sports on a par with those of other years. In the spring, it is true, the Crew, Track Team, and Baseball Team were organized on a more nearly normal basis than had been anticipated in the autumn.

Interest in athletics, however, was not to be discarded because of the war. There was no necessity of and, indeed, there was great harm in the students wasting their energy in useless excitement over the war. Athletics were needed more than ever before because of their value in developing the men without regard for their possibilities in raising the morale of the college.

Accordingly an informal system was adopted, and under the handicaps of insufficient funds, coaches, and enthusiasm, a football team was organized. Later the other sports also were established. A bare summary of each will be given here, as in another portion of this book the full record of each team may be found.

Football: A. Horween, '20, succeeded W. B. Snow, '18, who left college at mid-season, as captain. Six games were played, of which three were victories, two ties, and one a defeat. No game was played with Yale.

Hockey: R. E. Gross, '19, was captain. Four victories in six games were secured. No game was played with Yale.

Track: B. Lewis, '20, was captain until May, when H. D. Costigan, '20, succeeded him. In May Princeton and Yale defeated Harvard in a triangular meet at New Haven.

Crew: R. S. Emmet, '19, was captain. Yale was beaten by two lengths on the Housatonic two-mile course.

Baseball: W. W. McLeod, '19, was captain, succeeded by R. E. Gross, '19, and later by L. B. Evans, '20. Games were lost to Yale and Princeton, and one game was won from the latter.

Sophomores played unusually prominent rôles on the various publications because of the depletion of the editorial and business boards. E. A. Bacon was president of the Lampoon, the first Sophomore to hold that office. In spite of difficult conditions of publication all of the papers survived the year, although reduced in size and scope.

Drives for the Red Cross, the Liberty Loans, Y.M.C.A., and other war services were numerous throughout the year, and subscriptions to them were very satisfactory. Doubtless many felt that here was one way in which they might aid, although not yet in active service. Military activities supplanted all else in the eyes of the students. Both the military and the naval training were emphasized at all times.

As each series of Officers' Training Camps opened many from our class left Cambridge, some never to return. No less than three who left in January, 1918, were killed in France.

ARNOLD HORWEEN,
President.

Junior Year

THE military aspect and nature of the Cambridge which our class left in the summer of 1918 was unchanged to the Juniors returning in the fall, as the Students' Army Training Corps and the Marine and Naval Units were the be-all and end-all of undergraduate life for the three months until Christmas. The class of nearly seven hundred which had entered in 1916 had shrunk to one hundred and seventy-nine at this time, and by far the greater number of men whose records appear in this book were then in active service or in training before being admitted to the Officers' Schools of the various services.

Not long after the signing of the armistice military endeavors ceased here, and the announcement was made that men returning in January would receive credit for two-thirds of the year's work. The registration of 1920 thereupon doubled, and at the beginning of the third term, under special regulations, forty-two more enrolled. There was great satisfaction in the return to college, and there was an evident desire to start the activities of the undergraduate world in the ways of before the war.

Formal athletics were resumed at once, and under the captaincy and management of R. E. Gross, '19, and E. W. Pavenstedt, '20, a hockey team was developed which beat both Yale and Princeton. In the spring the baseball team was captained by W. W. McLeod, '19, and managed by F. Hibbard, '20. Twenty-one games were played of which eight, including the Princeton series, were victories. W. Moore, ocC., led the track team which defeated Princeton, lost to Yale, and finished fourth in the Intercollegiates in the Stadium. L. B. Leonard, '19, was the manager. In the crew race with Yale we were the loser by a little over a shell's length. F. B. Whitman, '19, was the captain, with A. Houghton, '21, manager.

There were other activities in which 1920 did its share in starting once more with the old-time vigor: Phillips Brooks House, the Student Council, the various publications, and several of the minor sports. The Junior Dance was a very enjoyable occasion, held in March at the Union.

In any summary of the year one cannot fail to draw a comparison between its beginning, which was unsettled and unsatisfactory, and the end, which was in most respects like the pre-war days. One must also note the great number of men of the class who served either under the American or some Allied flag. Fifteen classmates gave their lives in the short months of the war. The deeds of these men together with the unsullied war record of the class will always be a source of pride to 1920.

JULIAN CASTLE BOLTON,
President.

Senior Year

AT the beginning of the current college year the Class of 1920 was more united than at any time since before the United States declared war. No one of the other undergraduate classes had been so vitally affected by the war, and although many of us returned in the spring and summer of 1919 to finish our course, it was not until the fall of 1919 that we could present the definite outlines of a compact body. How many of us in the spring of 1917 thought we should again be finishing our college course as a class after such a short interim of war?

All college and class activities were revived immediately courses started in the fall. Although all evidences of war and interest in the military seemed to have vanished, we found later that it was, in fact, only the surface indications which had disappeared; for we seemed to be much more intensely interested in the vital questions of the day than we had been, and in consequence informal discussion clubs and active participation in various forms of public service were in evidence.

In athletics the class has shown excellent spirit and energy. Football enjoyed a very successful season under the leadership of W. J. Murray, '18, and the coaching of R. T. Fisher, '12. The team tied Princeton after a spectacular uphill fight, decisively defeated Yale, and on New Year's Day, in Pasadena, defeated the University of Oregon. The hockey team came through its season with an even more remarkable record. With N. S. Walker, Jr., '20, as captain, and W. H. Claflin, '15, as coach, the team achieved victories over every college team played, including two straight over both Yale and Princeton.

As the spring term opened, baseball, crew, and track were well under way, and the number of candidates showed an increased feeling of interest in these sports. R. W. Emmons, 3d, '20, captain of the baseball team, W. Davis, '21, captain of the crew, and D. F. O'Connell, '21, captain of the track team, are all hopeful of turning out winning teams.

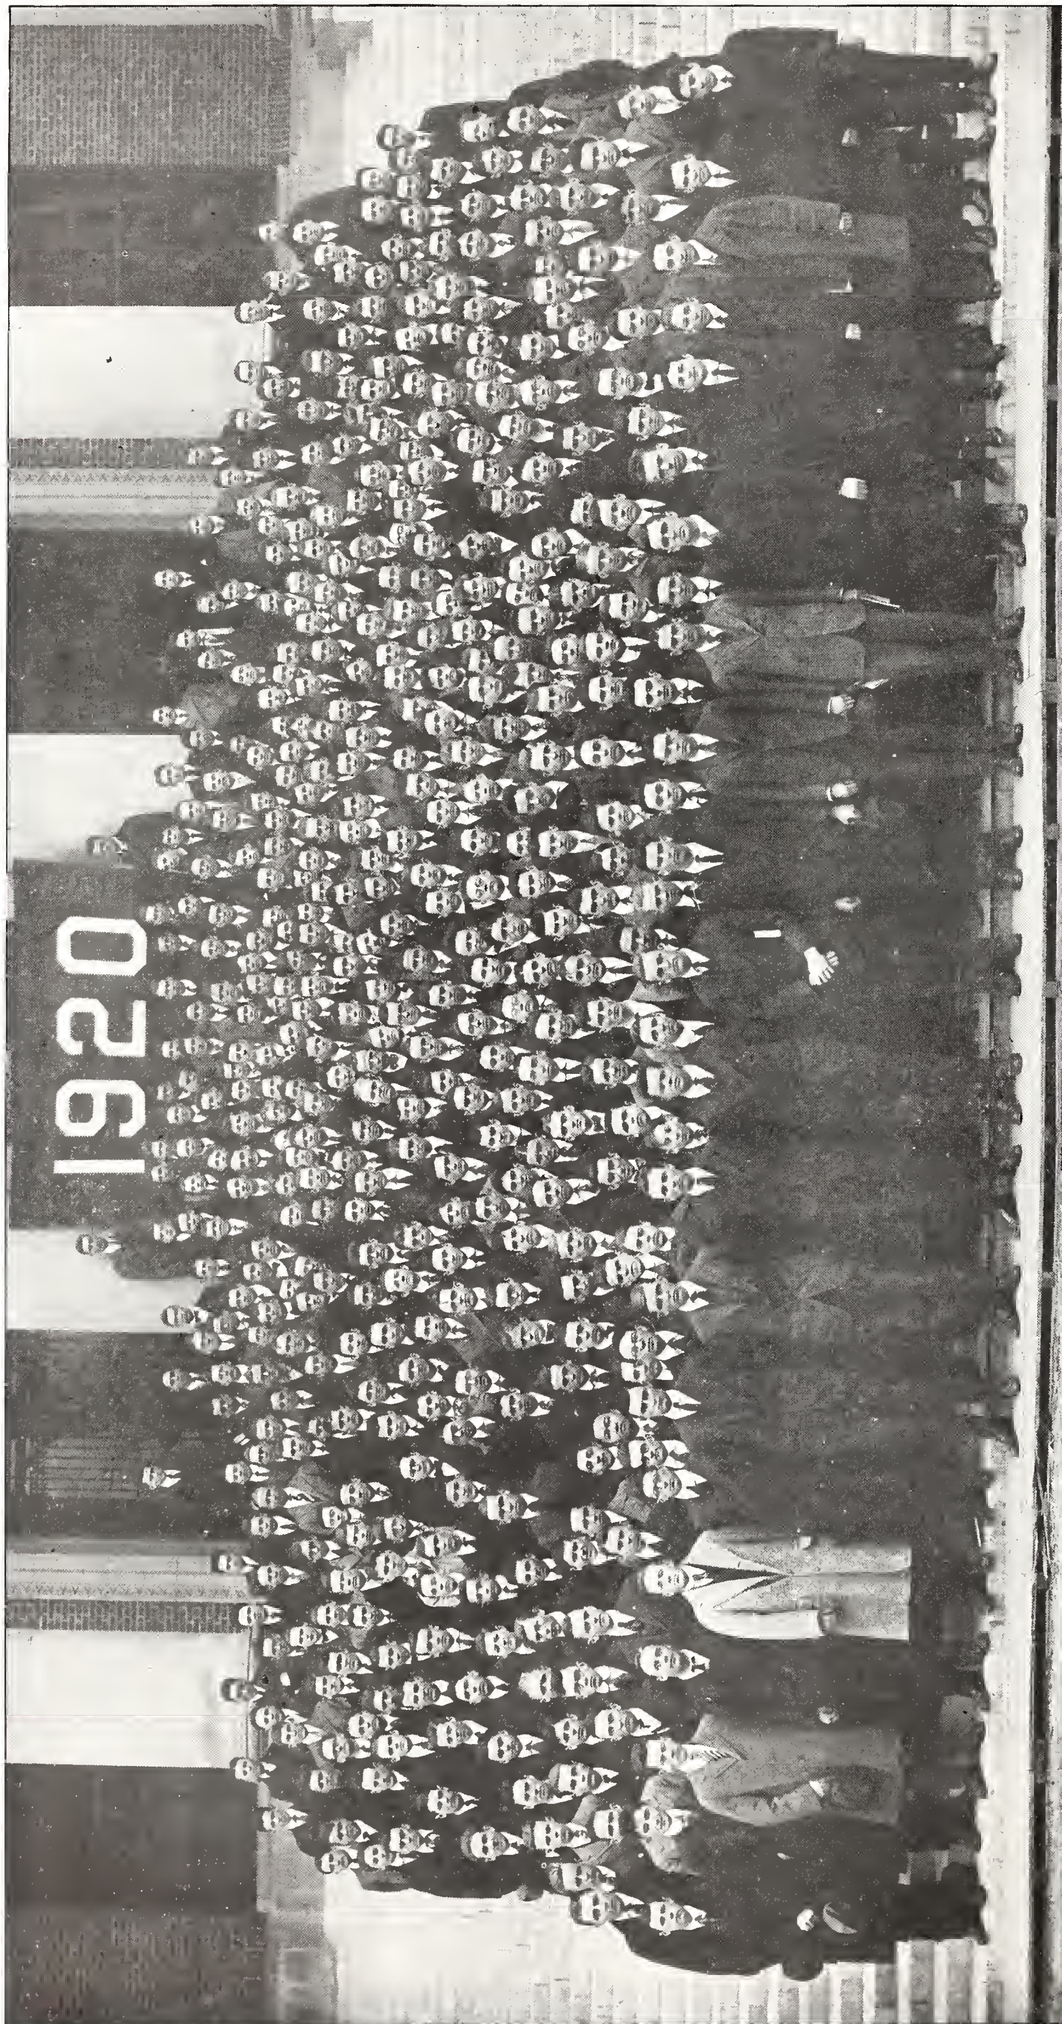

The undergraduate publications have also enjoyed successful years. The addition of the Illustrated and the acquisition of a new and larger press have made of the Crimson a publication easily among the foremost college dailies. The Lampoon added to its achievements by publishing several rather unique special numbers, while the Advocate successfully came back to life and very ably filled its place as an undergraduate publication.

Senior class elections resumed their pre-war position on the calendar and resulted in the following class organization: First Marshal, F. K. Bullard; Second Marshal, F. C. Church, Jr.; Third Marshal, R. W. Emmons, 3d; Secretary, F. Workum; Treasurer, B. Lewis; Orator, S. Washburn; Ivy Orator, E. Scott; Poet, J. G. King, Jr.; Odist, P. R. FREDERIC KEIL BULLARD,
First Marshal.

AN angel's task to publish records fair
Of lives as real as life to all mankind.
What fear, what hope but has not entered
there
Some heart to blanch its burning? Shall we find
Ahead of us a work of worth, a game,
A feud of loves and hates, a famed career,
A web of thoughts, a joy in life, a shame,
Unlike in essence that embodied here?

—"Dark, my friend, and tortuous was the way;
Mist-hung, and fraught with dangers half revealed,
But on these blessed heights eternal day
Kisses our spring, our tree, our flowered field.
Here shall we gild our toils with memory,
Warmed in the light the soul of man reveres;
And here the melodies of revery
Will mingle with the music of the spheres."

—"If, dazzled with glory, thou canst look with me
Down through the darkness out of which we came:
Those struggling, earth-bent creatures too can see,
And their clay, friend, and ours is the same."

—"Phantoms of dreams, which at the waking die!"

—"Nay, that is life, and there our lives must lie."
